

SEES HADES AND RETURNS TO OGDEN RESOLVED TO BE PREPARED FOR THE WORST

To sit and gaze straight into the gateway of hell—the old orthodox hell of fire and brimstone—where the temperature of the molten mass beneath the fiery lake is probably three thousand degrees Fahrenheit, was the favorite diversion of James W. Abbott, vice president of the Pingree National bank and of the George A. Love company, who returned several days ago from a winter visit to the Sandwich Islands.

Mr. Abbott today described, in conversation with a representative of the Standard, the awe-inspiring lake of fire and brimstone in the crater of Kilauea, which is so vast in size the city of Chicago could be dropped into it, as other travelers have remarked, still leaving room for New York and Philadelphia, for this gigantic vent in the surface of mother earth is one of the largest on the globe and extends, perhaps, like an immense planetary chimney a distance of 2,000 miles or more through the solid masses of the globe to the liquid interior.

Talk About Power!
At this time, while the "great guns" of war are roaring, the predatory little animal known as man—a planetary insect endowed with intellect, with brains and power to think, sharing to that small extent the divine attribute of the omnipotent Creator—much talk is heard of "the wonderful power" of the 45-centimeter and other cannon, representing the maximum of man's achievement, but the power of the volcano of which Mr. Abbott spoke is so stupendous that it can only be realized by reference to the authentic fact that this volcano once hurled, like its prototype, Cotopaxi, a solid mass of rock weighing four hundred thousand pounds a distance of nine miles, and another sister in the vast chain, known as Antuco, in Chili, has hurled stones larger than a box car a distance of thirty-six miles.

How Volcano Looks.
"The volcano beggars description," said Mr. Abbott. "One would sum it up as the gateway of hell, for so it appears, indeed. It is a vast lake of living, molten lava. It surges forth from the hot interior to within fifty or one hundred feet of the crater's rim. As the surface cools it assumes a bluish tint. The surface has seams running around it, like the seams of a baseball, red with heat. The surface is dotted with geyser-like holes, which grow larger and larger, boiling fiercely all the time, until finally each throws a spray of fiery lava high into the air. The surface is continually breaking out in this manner in different places. On a dark night the glare of the volcano in the sky affords a truly magnificent spectacle. When active, the volcano is, indeed, terrifying to the natives and awe-inspiring at all times. In olden days the superstitious natives crawled to the crater's rim and threw their cherished jewels and other things into the cauldron to appease the wrath of the god of fire." It makes one's hair curl to hear Mr. Abbott tell about the famous volcano.

Hawaiians Like Mormons.
Mr. Abbott said, in reply to a question, that the Mormon church is rapidly growing stronger and more popular in the islands, and the Mormon missionaries, who have done a great deal of beneficent work, are useful and well liked by everybody. "They seem to be the only ones," he said smilingly, "who could induce the natives to do real work. The fine new Mormon temple will be dedicated in the near future."

"The Hawaiians love everybody," said Mr. Abbott, smilingly. "They are delightful people—always perfectly congenial, unselfish, always smiling, generous to a fault, always ready to share their last crust with the stranger. They are admirable, indeed, and despite their association with the greedy whites and their yellow imitators, they aren't losing these desirable racial traits."

Liquor a Curse.
"Liquor drinking still is a curse of the islands, but prohibition is now being seriously discussed. The legislature was in session when I left. They will fight with the question for awhile, but eventually, I am sure, the islands will be 'dry.'"

Climate is, of course, delightful, as Mark Twain once described—earth's incomparable paradise. Social life is enjoyable, because the people are truly congenial, kind and courteous. Business opportunities are extremely limited, because all important business is syndicated.

"The Chinese are doing most of the work, serving in the hotels as managers, clerks, bookkeepers, etc. The Japanese, of whom the islands have thousands, do not seem to excel in this line, wherein the Chinese are excellent servants. The Japanese have a practical monopoly of the fishing industry, however. The population includes a large number of well educated Chinese and Japanese."

Schools Excellent.
"The school system is excellent, in some respects incomparable. It was founded by the early missionaries. Prior to the building of the transcontinental railroads, many western families sent their children to the islands to be educated, instead of sending them around the Horn to the eastern schools."

"The Hawaiian teachers are solving the difficult problems growing out of the racial differences in this great fluxing-pot, with a success most gratifying to the visiting American. The population includes masses of whites, Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese, Filipino, Spaniards, and negroes. There is some intermarriage between the Chinese and Hawaiians, but the Japanese are preserving their racial individuality."

All Patriotic.
Mr. Abbott said the population of Hawaii evinced intense patriotism and a genuine love for Old Glory. Young men of the best families are eagerly joining the National Guard. They delight in the drill and parade. There are nearly 10,000 regular soldiers stationed at this time on the islands. Fort Shafter and Fort Ruger. The latter stronghold is situated near Diamond Head, which is a narrow promontory jutting far out into the sea. It is honeycombed with tunnels and mysterious fortifications.

The islands are now under constant guard, said Mr. Abbott. Formerly it was possible for visiting Americans, with proper credentials, to visit the fortifications, but no one except trusted soldiers or sailors are now admitted.

Ideal Policemen.
"Some of the Hawaiians are joining the National Guard," he said, "but the principal ambition of the native is to become a policeman. In this capacity, stationed at crossings and street intersections, they excel any policeman I have ever seen. They are extremely graceful, polite and obliging."

"I witnessed a gratifying illuminated parade by the Japanese on Washington's birthday. There was every indication of patriotic loyalty on the part of the Japanese, many of whom are American citizens, having been born on the islands. And they seem proud, indeed, of their citizenship. Great dazzling stars, or transparencies, one for each state, were a feature of the parade, and one huge and splendid star, heading the procession, represented Hawaii. After seeing that parade and after studying those people I do not feel alarmed by the 'Japanese peril,' which is something of a bugaboo, it seems to me."

"The islands have two great daily papers, the Star-Bulletin and the Chronicle, but the foreign news is rather limited."

Mr. Abbott said he was not privileged to meet Queen Lilioukalani, who died during the Cleveland administration.

The queen, who is world famous as the author of the piteous farewell song "Aloha Oe," still resides at the royal residence and is greatly beloved by the people. Mr. Abbott was informed that her health at present is poor and she is no longer active in social life.

'HELL MORGAN'S GIRL'
WONDERFUL PICTURE
AT ORPHEUM TONIGHT

"Hell Morgan's Girl" and one of the best film comedies ever presented on a screen at the Orpheum theatre tonight and tomorrow. To those who wish to see why the famous Barbary Coast vice district was closed recently by the San Francisco authorities, go and see "Hell Morgan's Girl," as it is all told in this feature true to life, with its dance halls, saloons and other dens. The story is founded on the notorious Hell Morgan's dive and his beautiful daughter, who gradually works the reformation of a man sunk to the very dregs of the earth. The picture is full of thrills and action and makes up a great feature.—Advertisement.

MUSTER OUT TO BE SUSPENDED GERMANS TAKE RUSS POSITIONS

National Guards Not Already Dismissed From Border to Remain in Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Further demobilization of national guard regiments now in the federal service was suspended today by the war department.

The war department did not explain the order but it was understood the units would be used in their respective states for police protection purposes rather than call into the service other guard regiments.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 27.—Orders from the war department for suspension of the muster out of the national guard organizations in states of the southern department were received at army headquarters today. The only troops in the department that have not already been mustered out are the First New Mexico infantry, First Arizona infantry and three companies of the Fourth Texas infantry at Fort Worth.

THOUSANDS WILL PLEDGE LOYALTY

Great Demonstration to Be Given in Independence Square in Philadelphia.

UPHOLD GOVERNMENT

Scores of Committees Preparing Program—Interstate Flag to Be Unfurled.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—A pledge of loyalty to the government in the present crisis by thousands of men and women of this city, given in Independence Square, has been planned for next Saturday afternoon by Mayor Smith and the home defense committee.

The patriotic demonstration is to give emphasis to the preparedness measures being hastened by scores of committees and associations and the city administration. Numerous parades of military organizations and of civilians have been arranged.

In a proclamation issued last night, Mayor Smith calls on all business houses to close at noon Saturday and for all church bells to be rung at 2:30 p. m. When the patriotic anthems are to be sung by the crowds about Independence hall. A separate demonstration for school children has been arranged for Washington Square, diagonally opposite Independence Square. An airplane is to circle over both squares and show small American flags on the demonstrators.

An interstate flag, containing a star embroidered at the order of the governor of each of the forty-eight states, is to be unfurled during the demonstration. The flag was received from the citizens' committee appointed by Mayor Smith to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the close of the Civil war.

DEPUTY SHERIFF IS ON WAY TO OGDEN WITH PRISONER

Deputy Sheriff William H. Lowder, who was sent to Los Angeles to attend to extradition proceedings, by direction of Sheriff Herbert C. Peterson, and bring back for trial Max Shear, of Los Angeles, charged with forging the name of Ralph E. Phillips, and passing a check at the Reed hotel for $25.00, is expected to arrive with his prisoner tonight or tomorrow morning.

Unusual interest attaches to this case because it is notoriously difficult to extradite a person from California who has money or friends to oppose extradition, and also because Governor Simon Bamberger, after issuing extradition papers, is alleged to have reconsidered to extent of requesting a delay.

In the meantime the fugitive's attorneys at Salt Lake tried to find out, it is alleged, whether the case could be settled by payment of the small amount of the alleged forged check.

County Attorney Charles L. Farr and Sheriff Peterson both made it plain to all concerned that their respective offices were not to be used, in this or any other case, as a commercial collection agency. The word sent south to Governor William D. Stephens of California was that Weber county wanted the man to answer for the alleged crime of forgery, for which Governor Bamberger had issued extradition papers.

The alleged forgery in this case is one of the neatest of the many discovered here in several months. Mr. Phillips, whose name was forged, declares the signature is a forgery. He is president of the American Realty company of Salt Lake. The alleged forgery was so artistic, however, that only Mr. Phillips could detect the difference, and it was a difficult signature to reproduce.

Daily Market Report

WORLD'S MARKETS

NEW YORK, March 27.—Operations broadened moderately after the opening, equipments extending their gains, which rose four points. Shipings also hardened with some of the minor specialties and low priced rails, standard issued of the latter group relinquishing half their gains. United States Steel and other leaders moved within narrow limits on small offerings. Oils continued irregular, Texas company rising almost two points with heaviness in Mexican and California Petroleum. Business dwindled in the second hour, except for occasional spears in obscure specialties and utilities. Montana Power rose over three points.

Bonds were irregular.

Chicago Quotations

CHICAGO, March 27.—Wheat developed fresh strength today owing to continued unfavorable crop conditions throughout important sections of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. The declaration of an embargo on exports from Argentina was also a bullish factor. An evident increase in demand for the May delivery here was one of the results of the embargo. Opening prices which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1 3/8c higher with May at $1.91 to $1.91 3/4 and July at $1.63 3/4 to $1.64 1/4 were followed by substantial further gains all around.

Corn ascended with wheat. Commission houses were the chief buyers. After opening 1 1/4c to 3 1/4c up, the market scored a moderate additional advance. Oats shared the strength of other cereals. Sellers were scarce. There seemed to be no aggressive support for provisions. Bears, however, were intimidated by the upturn in the value of grain.
